City Expansion Law Urged

incorporation must be voted upon at the next general election, and if a majority of such electors voted favorably, the trustees declare such territory incorporated.

"Other sections of the general code provide that any territory may be incorporated into a village by application of 20 electors to the county commissioners and upon hearing, if the commissioners are favorable, such territory is thereupon incorporated.

"It will be observed, therefore, that any territory, no matter how small or how closely situated to a large city may be incorporated under our present laws and this condition, in my opinion, calls for close scrutiny on the part of our municipalities.

Cleveland's Handicap

"You are no doubt familiar with the fact that the city of Cleveland has been cursed with the incorporation of small communities and is more or less surrounded by incorporated villages which curb the growth and expansion of that city. Cleveland in many instances has grown out and around these incorporated communities and completely hemmed them in.

"Other cities of Ohio have become conscious of this same problem. Communities failing in a first attempt to incorporate through the disapproval of county commissioners have immediately turned around and availed themselves of the township trustees method of incorporation. In other cases small communities or allotments directly in the path of a city's growth are seeking incorporation and to counteract such movement affected cities, in order to protect themselves and keep territory open for expansion, have concurrently applied to county commissioners for the right of annexation. Bitter fights have thus been precipitated and in most cases the problem has come to an impasse.

"If county commissioners refused the city the right to annex contiguous communities or give such communities the right to incorporate or leave them free to hold an election after petitioning township trustees, irreparable injury will be done to the future growth of the cities.

Conditions Have Changed

"It is submitted that the methods of incorporation for small communities now provided by the laws of Ohio are entirely too liberal. Although such methods were undoubtedly proper and justified during the period of Ohio's early growth they are not warranted by conditions existing today. Ohio is one of the older states of the union and its centers of population are more or less fixed and are likely to remain as they are now. These cities have been largely responsible for the fact that Ohio ranks fourth among the states of the union in population and they are directly responsible for the great industrial growth and development of this state. In our cities are found the school systems, hospitals, medical centers, libraries, newspapers, banks, mercantile establishments, parks, playgrounds, public auditoriums and scientific, educational and social centers of which the state of Ohio is justly proud.

"In view of the tremendous investment at stake in our cities, not only in dollars but in human progress, is it wise to permit small groups to obstruct and defeat an orderly program of extension and development of our cities? Should the welfare and interests of the hundreds of thousands of citizens living in our municipalities be fettered and harrassed by small groups living adjacent to such municipalities, which groups, in most instances, are receiving all the benefits and obtaining most of the advantages of those living within the corporate limits of such municipalities? Private business and enterprises of like size and proportion would not tolerate such conditions for one moment. It is only in the field of government that such absurdities are permitted to exist.

Repeal Proposed

"It is proposed therefore that the sections which give permission for incorporation applications to township trustees be repealed by the next legislature, leaving application to the county commissioners as the only method of incorporation in this state. In order to properly protect and safeguard this method of incorporation in the interest of the great majority of people in Ohio it is proposed that amendments be introduced to provide that country commissioners shall be without authority to permit the incorporation of any territory when such territory is situated within three miles of the then existing corporate limits of a city, without first obtaining the consent of the council of such city.

"It is of course conceivable that situations may arise where incorporation of small communities, although adjacent to larger communities, would be advisable, or at least not harmful, but the proposed amendment takes care of this eventuality as it permits incorporation by and with the consent of such larger communities. The three-mile area contained in the amendment is suggested by reason of the fact that the laws of Ohio now give city planning commissions jurisdiction within a radius of three miles outside the corporate limits. In recent years city planning has come to the fore in all parts of the country and is admittedly of great benefit, and it would seem that without changing the laws of this state in accordance with the ideas herein suggested that such planning will be more or less futile and a wasted effort on the part of our cities. It will be noted that the proposed amendment does not affect the right of incorporation except in city zones and the right to incorporate in all territory outside of city zones remains unimpaired

Importance Stressed

"Having had under observation a concrete example of the operation of the Ohio statues as they now exist, I am convinced that this matter is of pressing importance to the municipalities of the state of Ohio and should be given serious consideration by our committee. Some method should be worked out to protect and safeguard the logical expansion and orderly growth of our cities."

The legislative committee of the Ohio Municipal league will meet in October in Columbus to discuss this proposal. Members of the committee, other than City Solicitor Mack and Mayor McDonald, are: G. Lloyd Weil, mayor of Akron; C. A. Weigand, mayor of Lakewood, and L. Don Jones, mayor of Marion. The league has called a general meeting to be held in Cleveland in November.

GAS IS RESTORED AFTER 28 HOURS

Columbus Office Starts Investigation into Cause of Shut-Off Here.

Gas service was restored in Marion yesterday between 4 and 4:30 p. m. after the city had gone without gas 28 hours.

Normal pressures were recorded by gauges of the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. at its uptown offices and at the station on the east corporation line of the city this morning.

Several lines in the city were filled with gas as early as 4 p. m. yesterday but all sections had not been given service until 4:30.

The cause of the sudden shutoff that robbed the city of gas Tuesday at 12:40 p. m. was found at a valve gate at Claridon on the 22-inch line through which Marion obtains its gas supply. The valve gate was found to be only partly closed. Small pieces of metal and rust had completely filled the line at this point.

An investigation of why the line was three-fourths closed was promised by gas company officials yesterday. This will be conducted through the Columbus offices in charge of main lines, R. C. Foster, local representative, said today.

Columbus officials of the company left here late last night after gas had been restored.

Famous Fliers Have To Get Propeller in France

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 11—A new wooden propeller for their plane, the Question Mark, must be brought from France before the Paris-to-New York fliers, Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, can begin their good-will tour. The delay will be about a week.

Discovery of a crack in the propeller was made yesterday when the fliers inspected their plane at Curtiss Field, Valley Stream, Long Island.

BABSON SEES SIGNS OF BETTER BUSINESS

Improvement May Be Expected Soon, Is Forecast of Economic Expert.

WELLESLEY HILLS, Mass., Sept. 11—Relief from the current business depression may be expected this fall, Roger W. Babson, famed statistician, predicted today.

Though refusing to discuss the outlook for 1931, he told the seventeenth annual national business conference that "the tremendous drop registered by the Babson chart since last September must soon strike bottom if it has not already done so," and he was confident there would be a definite business pick-up in the coming autumn.

"A year ago today, a financial writer stated that all parts of the country were optimistic except Babson Park, which had the 'blues,'" Babson said. "Today I should say that most parts of the country have the 'blues,' while Babson Park is optimistic. In making this statement, I am referring only to our general outlook on the immediate situation, without making any long-termed forecasts one way or the other."

cused by the American people. Granting the right of our citizens for making such investments, the people will demand that goods manufactured in these foreign plants from cheap foreign labor must not be allowed to drive out our high paid American labor.

"The talk of retaliation of foreign countries is stimulated by this selfish interest. Most of the countries since the World war have adopted in one form or another the protection system as a remedy for unemployment—this legislation will not necessarily increase the cost of living. * * * In fact, the cost of living has decreased from four to six per cent since the act became law."

Discusses Unemployment

Absolving the administration from responsibility for the present economic depression, the keynoter declared that the drastic measures taken by the President in limiting such immigration as may aggravate the unemployment situation, "is additional evidence of the purpose, method and determination of the President to meet the problems of unemployment during the period of depression, which, if allowed to have taken its course would have been on us for an indefinite period, but which under this leadership has already begun improvement."

"Our national leadership has been notably seconded in our state through our governor, whose genius for constructive administration makes him a great business governor. His first term gives him a high rank among the greatest of our governors."

with him on the G. O. P. state ticket "the splendid public servants whose record entitles every one of them to reelection."

Opposes Gas Tax Raise

Touching upon the problems of taxation, Governor Cooper opposed any further increase in the state gasoline tax, favored a reduction of the general property tax "for the relief of the farmer, small home owner and the protection of industry in general," voiced a desire for "a broader and more equitable distribution of the tax levies on the intangible wealth of the state," and declared it is imperative that property shall be relieved of some of the present school tax burden "by the shift of a larger amount to the state's general revenue fund."

Referring to the recent drouth that worked a tremendous hardship on 125,000 farmers of this state, and to the nationwide business depression that has prevailed since the latter part of last year, Governor Cooper said.

"The important responsibility laid at our door at this time is to give to the farmer, to industry and to the wage earner every possible aid for betterment and improvement. The full strength of state government, in all its agencies, will be directed to this end." He told of the cooperation between President Hoover and Ohio state officials in efforts to relieve conditions resulting from the depression and drouth.

Works on Prison Problem

"The overcrowded condition in our penal and welfare institutions has long been recognized as a menace," said the governor, dealing with the state's welfare program "we are going forward with welfare improvements and extending the appropriations made for this purpose, believing that an investment of this kind is carrying out the will and mandate of a responsible citizenship to its unfortunate wards."

Enumerating the acts of the last Ohio legislative session, the governor declared that campaign pledges, or promises which were made by him two years ago, have been kept.

"We have kept faith with the people—no debts; no deficits," said the governor, referring to his pledge "that we would so operate the state that it would live within its income."

Acidity
Slams More Doors than Temper!

"Touchy" and grouchy husbands are often only sick men! It's acid in their systems speaking when they bark and growl.

Excess acid formed in the stomach causes acid indigestion with gas, sourness and burning. It sets up putrefaction and fermentation in the intestines which spread poisons through the system and make us weak, tired, nervous and irritable.

A remarkable new corrective of acidity has been developed by a famous 100-year-old pharmaceutical house in Germany. This new acid corrective comes in the form of a small, white tablet, called Magnesia Oxoids. Magnesia Oxoids upon contact with the acid in the stomach, generate nascent, or active oxygen. Now, as any doctor will tell you, active oxygen when created within the digestive tract does just the things required for acidity. It stimulates the secretion of the alkaline mucus. It checks putrefaction and fermentation in the intestines. It stimulates the activities of the intestinal walls and aids the natural movement of the bowels. All three effects are necessary to a real correction of acidity.

Make this Acidity Test

See for yourself how much acid has to do with your indigestion, your cranky spells, your blue days and sleepless nights. Make this acidity test. Get a package of Magnesia Oxoids from Bradley's Drug Store, or any other druggist. Take two after each meal. Note the pickup in your pep and vigor. Watch the new poise of your disposition. If, after using the contents of one bottle, you don't notice a decided improvement in your condition, return the package to your druggist.

MORE IMPORTANT to millions of women than the scientific discovery about the atom's proton is another discovery reported to the American Chemical society yesterday by Dr. MacArthur of the University of Buffalo. He finds that one of the three sections of the pituitary gland contains a third, hitherto unknown, hormone, which affects "pigmentation." Thus the pituitary gland, which has so much to do with mental capacity, may also control the complexion.

YEARS AGO, when Mr. Edison and others began experimenting with various weeds and bushes, seeking a source of rubber here at home, it was suggested here that long before the experiments could amount to anything some chemist would make a brand of rubber from petroleum, independent of all vegetation.

Now Dr. Burgess, director of the bureau of standards in Washington, announces that rubber crystals have been produced from petroleum, under the direction of Dr. Washburn, head of the chemical laboratory.

These cautious scientists confine themselves to hoping that these experiments "may be of use to the commercial world. They may, indeed.

The rubber tree may, in a few years, be as unnecessary as the little female cochineal insect that once provided the world with scarlet, or the marine creatures that provided a beautiful purple before aniline dyes were produced.

Incidentally rubber made from petroleum, accompanied by another automobile boom, would help take care of our so-called "oil surplus."

If you find an oil well that nobody can tap and drain it, take care of it, and some day it will take care of you.

At the close of the third performance at Jamaica, Long Island, last night, plain clothes policemen led by Deputy Police Commissioner Sinnott converged backstage where they arrested Kirkland, the company and stage managers, the theater owner and manager, and five men and three women of the cast. They were taken to the police station in private automobiles. All entered bail.

The play, which was being given a tryout prior to a Broadway opening, has its setting along the St. Louis waterfront. The police said their principal objection was to the language used.

Druggist Slain As $45 Fails to Meet Demands of Bandit

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 11—A murder as heartless and unprovoked as police can recall over a long period was committed late last night in the drugstore of Willis Fiddelke.

Fiddelke was shot dead as he lay face down on the floor.

"You've only got $45, and that isn't enough," was what the killer said, jabbing the muzzle of his pistol into the druggist's back, between the shoulders, and pulling the trigger.

Two customers, held at bay in another room by an accomplice of the gunman, heard him say: "I croaked him all right. Let's get out of here."

The robbers had compelled Fiddelke to go to a rear room and lie face down. They complained at only finding $45, but Fiddelke explained it had been a poor day and that was all he had.

So he was killed.

SCOUT CAMP MADE STATE GAME REFUGE

John A. Owens Tract Closed to Hunters by Order of Warden.

Boy Scout Camp John A. Owens, located five miles south of Marion, has been made an official state game refuge by State Game Warden O. H. Niemeyer. Mr. Niemeyer and Walter C. Brown, scout executive of the Harding Area conferred this morning and the result of the conference was that at noon signs were nailed up all over the camp stating that the camp had been made a game refuge.

The scout camp includes about 50 acres of land, which although rather small for a game refuge, is admirably suited for that purpose due to the fine water available and the woody character of the district.

Niemeyer will turn loose confiscated game in the camp site, such as possum, coon, skunk, and squirel. Birds will be added later as a constant practice. The pool at the camp will be stocked with blue gills and bass.

During the summer camping season the camp will be furnished with pens of wild animals by the state game department, according to Brown. The scout executive will act as a deputy game warden with full authority to arrest anybody found hunting in the camp site.

Husband, Wife Killed When Train Hits Auto at Crossi

AGED COUPLE DIE INSTANTLY

Machine Stalls on Track as Aged Driver Becomes Excited.

Special To The Star

KENTON, Sept. 11—Mr. and Mrs. Elihu Garwood, aged farm couple residing four and one-half miles northwest of Dola, were instantly killed late Wednesday afternoon when their stalled automobile was struck by a westbound Pennsylvania freight train at Peterson's crossing three miles east of Ada.

The bodies were so badly cut and and mangled that identity at first was impossible. Their names were learned through the license tag on the car and a grain sack which bore Garwood's name.

The remains were taken to the Mohler & Lantz funeral home at Ada to await funeral services and burial Friday afternoon. Interment will be in the Woodlawn cemetery at Ada.

According to the story of eyewitnesses the couple attempted to cross the tracks from the south as the freight bore down on them from the west. It is believed that the driver of the car, becoming excited at the approach of the freight, stalled the engine.

Fireman of the freight and an employe of an elevator nearby said that from appearances the car stalled as it ran upon the track. The woman was seen to be making efforts to reach the rear seat of the car when the crash came.

Six children survive: Mrs. W. H. Rainey of Princeton, Ind; Mrs. E. W. Crandall of Ft. Meade, Md.; Mrs. Allan Derringer of Ada; Mrs. Ralph Leslie of Dunkirk, Mason Garwood of Canton, and Mervin of Dunkirk.

At least four persons were reported injured in three accidents in Kenton during the last 24 hours.

Mr and Mrs. V. E. Carlock were injured when their car collided with a truck said to belong to the Lima Packing Co. of Lima. Both were removed to the McKitrick hospital suffering from cuts and bruises.

Two men were injured when their machine skidded on loose gravel on the Roundhead pike, south of here, and turned over. The injured were Charles J. Long, a World war veteran, cut about the head and wrist. Mike Marangus, cut and bruised about the body.

Early Morrow County Industry Found Buried in Gravel Bank

Special To The Star

MT. GILEAD, Sept. 11—A forgotten industry of early Morrow county days was brought to light by the discovery of an abandoned lime kiln buried under 10 feet of gravel on the farm of B. W. Snyder in Congress township one and one-half miles east of Williamsport.

The kiln was unearthed by workmna excavating gravel for use on nearby township roads. The pit has been in use for the past eight years but no indication of the kiln was found until they had reached a depth of over almost 15 feet below the surface.

A large quantity of burned lime was found in the hole and it appeared in a perfect state of preservation. The oldest residents do not remember the kiln being in use but it is believed that it was probably 60 or 70 years since lime was burned there. Some of the red elm boards which covered the kiln were found. Most of them were rotted but a few were in a good state of preservation. The lime itself could be used now if moistened.

The farm on which the kiln was found is owned by B. W. Snyder of Williamsport, and is occupied by his son C. W. Snyder. It is known as the Fish homestead, Henry Fish having opened up the land almost 100 years ago.

DIGS UP OLD LAW

Police Sergeant Arrests Three Unlicensed Violin Teachers.

By The Associated Press

EVANSTON, Ill., Sept. 11—Out here it is a legal sin to teach to play the violin.

Under the circumstances, Sergeant Gene Ruland decided yesterday to arrest three violin teachers, their names being John Lindgren, Carl Norton and Walter Faccini.

The sergeant, who spends his spare time studying up the old laws, found that in 1875 an ordinance was passed making it unlawful to teach the playing of the violin without a license.

"The law has never been repealed," the sergeant said, "So I only did my duty."

Oddly enough, there is no law, one way or the other, dealing with the saxophone, to the French horn, and kettle drums or the steam calliope.

New Discovery Revolutionizes Washing of Fine Fabrics

Ethel Barrymore, Anne Morgan, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank on distinguished Committee of 17 which sees new bead soap out-perform chips and flakes

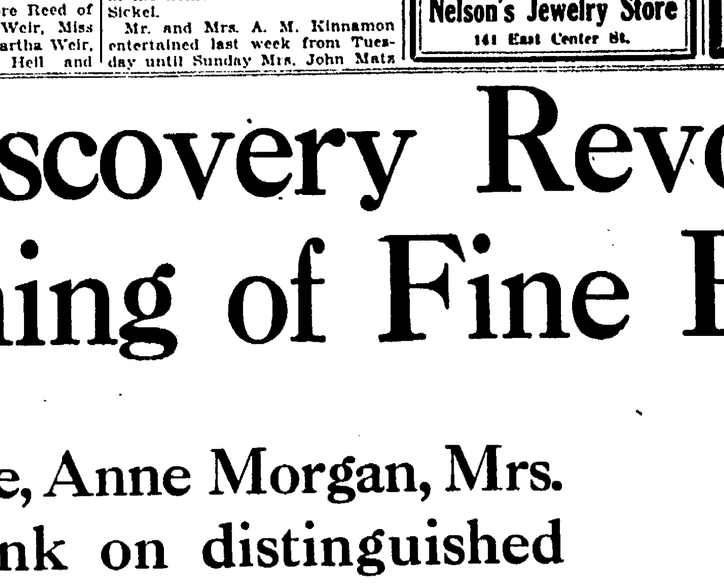
(Above) Three distinguished committee members arrive at the Ritz Hotel for the soap meeting that made history. They are Mrs. Oliver Harriman, Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt and Mrs. James J. Davis, wife of the Secretary of Labor and chairman of the Committee of 17.

A TINY bead of soap no larger than a pinhead, yet it holds the secret of 20% longer wear for silk stockings! Science proved this recently, at a meeting at the Ritz Hotel, New York, to the entire satisfaction of the Committee of 17, a group of distinguished women who were asked to give "the woman's viewpoint" on this revolutionary new soap.

Famous Women Watch Tests

Social leaders, home economics consultants, the wife of a distinguished cabinet member, eminent university authorities—women representative of every type of American femininity—the committee watched authorities test the flake and chip soaps used by women for washing silks. They heard chemists tell how modern washbowl laundering of silks demands a soap that dissolves instantly ... works in water as cool as 85 degrees F. and rinses away completely. Could the ideal soap for silks be made?

Science said "yes," and before the skeptical eyes of 17 women tested a revolutionary new soap that performed miracles never witnessed before. It dissolved 30 times faster than flakes, cleansed in water 20 degrees cooler than required by any existing soap, and rinsed away like magic in one swift rinse.



Members of the Committee of 17 compare silks washed with instant dissolving "beads" with those washed with slow dissolving flakes. The microscope reveals that slow dissolving soaps often fail to rinse away completely, causing soap damage. Mrs. James J. Davis (at microscope), Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt, Miss Edgerton and Miss Pollard.

Committee Approves New Soap

So revolutionary was the new soap ... so perfectly did it fulfill requirements no soap has ever been able to meet before ... that the Committee of 17 went on record as "unanimously approving the new soap as ideal for washing silks and fine fabrics."

The name of the new soap is "Palmolive Beads." It is the first "bead" soap for silks ever made. The only fine fabric soap made of olive and palm oils. Yet it costs no more than ordinary soaps. Order from your grocer.

So Marion may have a dance marathon in the near future! No use talking about it; we are crowding right into the big city class.

Retail business has shown a brisk advance in Chicago during the last three weeks. Truth to tell, there has been something of a pick-up all over the country.

Ten steamships entered New York harbor, one day this week, bringing 7,000 American vacationists back from Europe. It has been a long time since "Liberty" looked so good to so many people on the same day.

Retired from the Detroit mayoralty after six months in office in a recall election and defeated in his fight Tuesday to regain the office, Mr. Bowles might reasonably conclude that he is not wanted at the head of that city's government.

No matter what may have been the position of Mr. Coolidge, while president, regarding the League of Nations, there can be little doubt of his position as Coolidge, the citizen. One while running may read that he is for staying out of it.

To keep the other prisoners from rioting, a prisoner in jail in Evanston, Illinois, who insisted on playing the "Stein" song, was thrown out of the jail. It will have to be admitted that the overworked song comes pretty close to affording justification for rioting.

The Claude power tube has finally been successfully launched and anchored. It shouldn't be long, now, until we know whether the French scientist's plan of extracting power from the Gulf stream is to prove a mighty boon to mankind or only a dream.

Gutzon Borghum now plans to make the figures of Lee, Davis and Jackson on Stone mountain twice the size originally intended. There's no telling what the finished work may be if the mountain holds out. Mr. Borghum is mighty ambitious.

At the request of the president of Santo Domingo, United States marines are guarding the food supplies donated for the maintenance of the storm sufferers of the Dominican republic. It has become so that the American marines are as familiar figures in times of trouble and suffering and distress as the members of the Red Cross and their works have become almost, if not quite, as worldwide.

A survey shows that the twenty-nine major air lines of the United States carried more than 133,000 passengers and 3,000,000 pounds of mail during the first six months of the present year, the distance flown by their planes being equal to 430 times the circumference of the earth. The air industry has become a mighty husky infant.

Senator Borah.

Senator Borah, who went to Maine the early part of the summer to improve his health, has returned to the West, where he can do more good in a political way. Idaho will appreciate his visit, since it is but rarely that he gets back home.

Mr. Borah has announced that he will take the stump this fall for the progressive movement in national politics. His efforts will not be in his own behalf, of course, since he is a fixture in Idaho and is sure to be returned for a fifth term, but in behalf of certain of Senator Moses' "sons of wild jackasses."

It may be expected that Senator Borah will attempt to raise havoc with the regular Republican organization. He has two grievances to nurse before the public—farm relief and tariff revision. He can be depended upon to make the most of them in the Northwest region where he will do his speaking. In this connection, it is interesting to remember that it was just two years ago this month that Mr. Borah made his speech at Detroit in which he asserted that every national economic problem could be trusted to Mr. Hoover for solution, and offered his personal guarantee that Mr. Hoover would be "sound" on farm relief and the tariff. When the test came Mr. Hoover was "sound," but his ideas did not coincide with those of Mr. Borah and the fight was on. The senator's subsequent defeats are his grievances which he will set forth for the public's edification and sympathetic understanding.

It is fairly safe to prognosticate these things because it is the way of politics, and Senator Borah is a good politician first of all. In fact, it is to be regretted sometimes that a gentleman of his vigor and apparent sincerity should be so much of a politician. Personally likable, endowed with a splendid intellect and usually able to stand on his own feet, Senator Borah somehow seems to betray himself when he prostitutes his ability for unworthy purposes. That he can do very easily in his speeches this fall.

One Out, One In.

The strong trend toward political change in southern states lopped off two more familiar senatorial figures when voters in South Carolina and Louisiana went to the polls Tuesday.

Coleman Livingston Blease, whose soft black hat is known to Washington almost as well as its wearer's oratory is known on the floor of the senate, was forced to make way for a younger man, James F. Byrnes, in South Carolina's run-off primary. Candidate Byrnes, whose election is assured, served fourteen years in the house of representitives. He ran against Senator Blease in 1924, but unsuccessfully. He was popular while serving in Washington.

In Louisiana, it was Senator Joseph E. Ransdell, who fell by the sweep of the new southern broom. Replacing him in the senate seat which he has held since 1913 will be Governor Huey P. Long. Governor Long, in contrast with Senator Ransdell, is a son of turbulence flying high on the wings of sensationalism. It is generally conceded that his presence will add nothing to the dignity of the senate. Senator Ransdell is credited with having rendered able service in his public life, and he was generally dependable from a Democratic standpoint—much more so than his southern neighbor, Senator Blease, who might be found voting almost any way save with the Democrats. Senator-Elect Long, and a Democratic candidate is that in Louisiana, probably will be another independent when he reaches the senate.

These changes in the personnel of the senate are significant. They represent, in one case at least, an attitude of intolerance for past senatorial actions. Senator Ransdell was beaten by Governor Long's vigor; Senator Blease was defeated by his own record. But, from what is known of the victor in South Carolina, James F. Byrnes, and the victor in Louisiana, Huey P. Long, it seems doubtful that Mr. Byrnes' popularity and ability will be able to offset Governor Long's sensationalism and love of publicity. Perhaps nothing will be gained. Perhaps a better balance will be struck later on when Senator Thomas Heflin's fate is decided. If his defeat is accomplished, then the complexion of southern politics in the senate may indeed be said to have been changed for the better.

Possibly the receiver of the auditorium, Chicago's one-time home of opera, figures that a half loaf is better than no bread at all and hence proposed to utilize it for peewee golf rather than have it stand empty.

Anastasia Tschaikowsky, who claims to be a daughter of the late Czar Nicholas, of Russia, is to be permitted to remain in this country a year longer. What, are there still some hostesses who desire to make use of her for social climbing purposes?

The $3,000,000 steamship, Borinquen, is to be launched September 24 to ply between New York and Porto Rico. Its completion will mean $13,000,000 expended on new ships for West Indies lines in a twelve-month period. The steamship people are at last awakening to the demand for high-class service to the Caribbean.

The June offering of $400,000,000 in treasury certificates bearing two and seven-eighths per cent. interest was oversubscribed six times, and now Mr. Mellon is offering $325,000,000 in certificates, due September 15, 1931, bearing only two and three-eighths per cent. Some gilt-edged credit, that!

The Italian Fascists' answer to the Jugo-Slav rioting in Ljubljana over the execution of four Jugo-Slavs charged with plotting to kill Mussolini is that any others who try the same thing will find bullets awaiting them, and it's a pretty save guess that the Jugo-Slavs having a mind that way know that the threat is not an idle one.

Very ordinary cuts of meat are being sold in Moscow at $1.60 a pound without figuring two or three hours' time expended by the purchaser having to stand in line awaiting his turn to be served at the government markets. Living comes mighty high under the soviet conception of the blessings to be had under "liberty and equality."

It is interesting to note that only four men of the group of eighteen charged in Italy with thirteen murders, thirty-one attempted murders, bombings, burning of schools and asylums, spreading of subversive literature and supplying military secrets to Jugo-Slavia were executed, and they were found guilty of conspiring to kill Mussolini. We get here a pretty fair line on the Fascist conception of the comparative magnitude of a number of varieties of crime.

John Fitch Honored.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

The body of John Fitch, sharrer, at least, with Robert Fulton in the development of the steamboat, has been removed from the obscure place of its original burial at Bardstown, Kentucky, to a corner of the courthouse grounds of Nelson county, Kentucky, and the government has placed there a monument of modest form, declaring mutely the debt the world owes to Fitch.

It was only lately that the place of his burial was definitely ascertained and the D. A. R. are to be credited with this. Fitch was a soldier in the revolution, an expert gunsmith, and was with Washington that terrible winter at Valley Forge. It was because of this fact that the D. A. R. inaugurated a search for the grave and found it.

The Louisville Courier-Journal, in an editorial several years ago, commenting on this enterprise, suggested that Fitch took his own life at a little forgotten tavern in Bardstown. Certainly, in addition to seeing credit for inventing the steamboat go to another, he suffered business reverses sufficient to drive him to the very verge of desperation. Due to faulty records in the granting of lands by Virginia, he found the title of some lands he had purchased was bad, and like the father of Abraham Lincoln, a little later on, he was driven from what he regarded as a valuable possession.

It is interesting to know that this man was the father-in-law of James Kilbourne, founder of Worthington and the first congressman from the Columbus district, and that in the Ohio State museum is to be seen a wooden model of some of the working parts of the Fitch steamboat, which were found in the attic of the Kilbourne home in Worthington.

VACATION BENEFITS.

A writer in the Journal of Commerce suggests with considerable plausibility that the benefits of a vacation extend to those who stay behind as well as to those who leave. He has the insurance business particularly in mind, but his arguments apply to any business. It is unquestionably true that the executive called upon to do the work of a subordinate in addition to his own will find time for tasks neglected during the period when he had only his own duties to perform; this is in accord with the old village rule of going to the busiest man in town for the performance of any business requiring expedition. It is also true that subordinates who take on for a period of two or three weeks the duties of their superiors have the opportunity to get acquainted with responsibility and to test their abilities without severe penalty.

Another advantage of the vacation period not always comprehended is that it shakes up office routine. When absence of members of the staff compels a rearrangement of personnel and tasks it is often discovered that doing things in a new way is an improvement. The office worker who comes back to work with health restored, mind at ease and sun-tanned skin, naturally feels that he alone benefitted by his two weeks in the country; he seldom realizes that by the mere act of staying away from the office for a fortnight he has shaken the structure of routine and moved it from its base a perceptible distance.—New York Sun.

NOSTALGIA IN OCEAN TRAVEL DATA.

The first month of the new fiscal year 55,336 American citizens joined the exodus to Europe in July, when the vacation season for foreign travel is at its height. Compared with 56,339 the corresponding time in 1929, this is a loss of only a thousand. The stock market collapse of last October was expected to reflect heavily in a falling-off of ocean trips. As a matter of fact, it is seen to be less than two per cent.

Equally interesting in a report from the same federal source is the shrinkage in the balance of aliens remaining in this country. Fewer were admitted, more returned to their native shores and more were deportd than in previous years. About 4,800 actual immigrants who had been domiciled here departed to live abroad permanently, leaving a net gain of 8,500. Last year the monthly average of residue after deducting departures from arrivals was 16,500.

No theory was offered to explain the receding tide. Italy ranked first in supplying newcomers, with Germany second. The changed quotas based on national origin could hardly be called responsible for this showing. It seems equally doubtful to assume that our late guests were victims of the stock market. Thus dismissing a political hypothesis and a business hypothesis, the only possible remaining cause seems to be the weather, which, one must admit, has not been all it should be.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Nature Protects Health.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Nature defends the body in many mysterious ways. Hippocrates said, "Nature is the cure of diseases." Since his day science has done much to reveal some of the mysteries of the body and how to help the body overcome diseases. But even today our knowledge of the way in which the body defends itself is only fragmentary.

Resistance to disease is a strange thing. Individual resistance to disease differs widely. There are those who go through a long life and seldom have a serious illness. Others pass from one infection to another.

The causes that are most likely to lessen one's resistance to infection are many. They include insufficient or unsuitable food, lack of proper sleep and rest, spending time in a vitiated atmosphere, exposure to wet and cold, fatigue, worry and excesses of every sort.

If your body is weakened by wrong living, by any or all of those factors just named, then it is that the germs of disease gain the upper hand of Nature's defenses. Those who live wisely and harden their bodies by vigorous exercise are helping build up defenses. The body can then more readily destroy the millions of germs everywhere present.

Chilling of the body has various effects on the body. It may lead to colds, pneumonia and even greater harm.

Persons are much more susceptible to draughts if they are used to still, warm air. Draughts are seldom noticed by persons in good physical tone. Those who are susceptible to them, elderly persons and infants, must beware of them.

Another factor responsible for weakening naturally strong bodies is mistaken methods of feeding. The state of nutrition has a great deal to do with resistance to infection.

Infection by the germs of tuberculosis is widespread. But its active development in an individual is almost always due to lowered bodily resistance through impaired nutrition.

Self-poisoning from constipation is another alarming tendency among people of today and one which weakens the entire structure and all the organs of the body. It lowers man's efficiency tremendously.

Probably the greatest natural incubator of microbes in the world is the intestinal canal. It is said that from the alimentary tract thirty trillion bacteria are execrated daily by a normal, healthy adult. No one can afford to be neglectful of the excretory organs.

It is the person with a naturally strong body, made so by right living, who has the power to resist disease.—Copyright, 1930, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Glider in Peace and War.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

The recent development of popular interest, truly worldwide, in air gliding is a phenomenon of great interest and significance. It was given great development and vogue in Germany in very recent years and it has now international popularity and support. At first it was thought of as a popular sport and as an admirable preparation for air pilots who planned going in for aviation. It is a delightful sport for boys and girls, and skill in the management of the glider can be very readily acquired.

The recent developments in gliding indicate important possibilities for the use of the glider in transportation. Gliders have been trailed behind an airplane for great distances, with entire success. This clearly points to the likelihood of the use of the glider as a single car of an aerial passenger or even freight train. They can doubtless be used, in numbers, as trailers to huge airplanes. The airplane is the locomotive; a series of gliders, attached to it, would trail along behind like a train of cars.

A huge airplane, with six gliders trailing behind, each carrying passengers and mail, might take off from Seattle bound for New York, via San Francisco, Denver, Salt Lake City, Chicago, St. Louis and Rochester, for example. When the aerial train approaches San Francisco, the glider containing passengers and mail for that city could be detached and glide down to earth. This experiment has already been successfully attempted, the glider descending gently to earth from a dirigible to which it was attached.

The locomotive for the aerial train might, of course, be either a dirigible or a giant airplane. The process described above might be repeated at each of the cities for which the different gliders were destined. By placing all passengers and mail in the gliders, the locomotive airplane would be enabled to carry a much heavier load of fuel than at present, when it is weighted down with fuel, passengers and mail.

Whether in peace or war, the use of glider and airplane, as vehicles of transfer, would enable a passenger to change from one dirigible to another, for example. Gliding down from a dirigible, going from New Orleans to New York, for example, the glider might effect a landing at Washington.

Then the passenger, quickly changing from glider to airplane, might mount into the air, and be transferred to a dirigible, already in flight and on its way, say to St. Louis.

Transfers could thus be made from war planes to battleships, by means of gliders; and then vice versa, from battleships to war planes or dirigibles by means of airplanes. These things are possibilities today. They will be commonplace tomorrow.

Pat Harrison Opens Series of Political Talks

A NEW series of "Radio Rallies" presenting Democratic and Republican campaign speakers on alternate Thursday evenings, will be inaugurated over the Columbia Broadcasting System Thursday at 9:30 p. m. by Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi.

"Prosperity and Breadlines" will be the topic of the Mississippi legislator, and he will treat it in his well-known Democratic manner. A week later a similar topic will be discussed by an orator chosen by the Republican National Committee, who will flavor it with the principles of the G. O. P.

The national committees of both major parties are cooperating in these broadcasts. They will be offered during the present Congressional campaign as an unsponsored educational feature, displacing, for the campaign period, the National Radio Forum, and will be carried by 46 stations from coast to coast. Thus virtually every voter will be enabled to attend the "Radio Rallies."

Fritz Vayda and Margaret Padi will be heard as the vocalists on Emery Deutsch's Romany Patteran program Thursday at 9 p. m. over WABC and the Columbia Broadcasting chain.

Three numbers from the "Second Little Show" and another from the "Vanities" are outstanding on the program to be presented by the Knox-Dunlap Orchestra Thursday at 8 p. m. over the WJZ network.

Polly Walker, featured player in many Broadway musical comedies, will be a guest artist during the RCA hour broadcast over the WEAF network Thursday at 9 p. m.

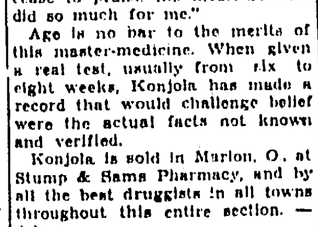
MAN, 88, FINDS LASTING RELIEF IN NEW KONJOLA

Ill For Years, Discouraged By Many Failures, New Medicine Brings Health



MR. D. L. GOSLING

"At my age, 88, I had no idea that any medicine would help me," said Mr. D. L. Gosling, National Military Home, Dayton. "I suffered for years and all the medicines and treatments I tried proved worthless. I had stomach trouble so badly that I could not eat a meal without bloating. Coffee or milk caused me to become ill. I lost weight, strength and energy.

"I took ten bottles of Konjola. That was two and one-half years ago. I have not taken Konjola for two years now but I still feel fine. I actually feel twenty years younger than I did two years ago. I have told more than fifty friends about Konjola and I shall never cease to praise the medicine that did so much for me."

Age is no bar to the merits of this master-medicine. When given a real test, usually from six to eight weeks, Konjola has made a record that would challenge belief were the actual facts not known and verified.

Konjola is sold in Marion, O., at Stump & Sams Pharmacy, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section. — Adv.

How Old Are You?

Today Is My Birthday—I'm 41

BUT NOT FAT

What a difference a year will make—Just a year ago I was fat and 40—I was indolent and far from ambitious.

Look at me today—You won't find a pound of excess fat on me—I am vivacious—ambitious—Active—feel as good as I did at 30.

It's so easy to take of unwanted fat if you only know how—just cut out pie—pastry—ice cream—and sweet desserts and do just as I did.

Eat moderately of lean meat—fish or chicken—eat cabbage—spinach—cauliflower—sprouts or carrots—a fruit or green salad—go easy on potatoes, rice, butter, cheese and sugar.

Be sure and take one half teaspoon of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast every morning.

If you do this you will lose the fat that makes you lazy and sluggish—You'll have energy—ambition—your skin will be clean and clear—your eyes will sparkle — you'll gain in charm and vivaciousness.

Get Kruschen—Nature's own magic salts, at Bradley's Drug Store, Henney & Cooper or any drug store in the World—an 85 cent jar lasts 4 weeks.—Adv.

KILLS 103 RATS ON NEBRASKA FARM

A Nebraska farmer killed 103 rats in 12 hours with K-R-O (Kills Rats Only), the product made by a special process of squill, an ingredient highly recommended by the U. S. Government. It is sure death to rats and mice but harmless to dogs, cats, poultry or even baby chicks. K-R-O is today America's most widely used rat and mouse exterminator. Sold by druggists on money back guarantee.—Adv.

ATTENTION!

Having a large number of requests for roller skating, I have made arrangements with Mr. Harold Keetler, operator of the Coliseum Roller Rink, Cedar Point, considered the largest rink in the world. He will open a first class rink at Rainbow Garden starting Saturday evening.

We will continue our Dancing Wednesday evenings as usual, with skating every afternoon and evening except Wednesday and Sunday. All Fibor skates will be used on the floor which will not cut, injure or blacken the floor. Mr. Keetler comes highly recommended as a floor specialist and has proven to the management of Rainbow Garden that you can skate as well as dance on the same floor. A new surface is given each time for dancing and the leading ballroom managers claim it makes a faster and nicer floor to dance on. You can rest assured that Rainbow Garden is going to be better than ever, and a visit to Marion's dance and skating palace will convince you.

Thanking you all for past patronage,

Very Truly Yours,

L. F. Schuler

SYNOPSIS

Elsa Winslow, beautiful crippled [illegible] guest in the home of Arnold Winslow, wealthy retired lawyer of Washington, D. C., and has won the love of Jack Winslow, his adopted son. The elder Winslow, however, suspects Elsa is an adventuress, and seeks the aid of G. Thorne, detective, in finding a way to break up the romance. A mysterious woman in blue has been seen talking covertly to Elsa. Dr. Paul Kane, noted surgeon, is found dead under his bedroom window late on the night when he was to have examined Elsa, who had shown willingness to be examined but has finally consented. An autopsy proves he died of poison, instead of the fall. Elsa and Arnold Winslow both are greatly upset by the news. An unknown woman spies on Jack as he makes out a note for $10,000 at a downtown bank. Returning home, Jack asks his father for the same sum, the latter says unkind things about Elsa, and in a moment of uncontrolled rage Jack attacks and chokes the elder Winslow.

CHAPTER 9

Family Secrets

"You may leave the coffee, Lambert," as the butler lifted the small electric percolator to put it back on the invalid's tray in front of Mrs. Winslow.

"Have the others dined?"

"Yes, madam, Mr. Thorne has returned."

"Good. Ask him to come to my boudoir, Lambert, and tell Dr. McLane I will be greatly obliged if he will join us there."

"Very good, madam." But still Lambert lingered. "If you please I'll not be here tonight."

"Oh!" Mrs. Winslow's thoughts, which had strayed eleswhere, came back to the servant with a rush. "This isn't your usual night off, Lambert."

"I'll take it instead, madam." The butler's manner was perfectly respectful. "You won't be needing me tonight," with a placating smile which disarmed his mistress.

"See that the house is locked up before you leave," directed Mrs. Winslow. "And tell Lucy to come the instant I ring."

The moment the door was safely closed behind the butler, Mrs Winslow left her easy chair and went over to the telephone. She lifted the instrument to her ear and spoke into the mouthpiece.

Ferguson's throaty tones came over the wire.

"Yes, ma'am."

"Ferguson?" then sure of his identity. "You are to carry out my orders implicitly."

"Yes, ma'am."

"Be watchful tonight, Ferguson, and be on your guard when Lambert is around."

"I will, ma'am; don't you be afeared."

She replaced the telephone and crossed the room to her boudoir. She entered it just as Lambert showed Thorne and McLane in through the hall door.

"You gentlemen already know each other," she said, turning with a touch of eagerness to the physician. "How is Arnold?"

"Resting quietly; he dropped off to sleep soon after regaining consciousness," replied McLane. "How are you feeling?"

"Oh, quite myself," Mrs. Winslow's white, pinched features contradicted her statement, but McLane forbore to comment. "My husband," she continued, turning to the silent detective, "had a heart attack just before dinner."

"I am sorry," exclaimed Thorne. "I found a telephone call to come here, but had I known I would not have disturbed you."

"I sent for you," she broke in. "I understood from my husband that he has retained your services professionally to"—she hesitated—"to investigate the mysteries—mysterious happenings out here," correcting herself. "Arnold said that while you had not definitely promised your aid, the check he had offered you was not left on his desk."

"I took it." Thorne's eyes never left Mrs. Winslow. "Frankly, Mrs. Winslow, Dr. McLane's statement as to the result of the autopsy altered by decision."

"Ah, I am glad." She rose, and with a sudden graciousness which sat well upon her: "My husband will be equally pleased."

"But tell him that I shall not cash the check—now," Thorne's pleasant manner matched hers in courtesy. "Can I do anything for you?"

"You have already given me great comfort," suavely, although her heart was beating swiftly. 'I will tell Arnold when he awakens that Dr. McLane and I have your promise to undertake the case. Poor Arnold, to have another attack at this time Shall I sit up with Arnold tonight, doctor?"

McLane shook his head. "Miss Kline will look after him," he said.

Mrs. Winslow's tired face lightened and returning the friendly pressure of his hand she bowed to Thorne and withdrew to her own room.

In the hall the physician hesitated, then spoke under his breath: "Come this way, Thorne." And side by side the two men walked the short distance to Arnold Winslow's bedroom.

Winslow lay sleeping partly on his right side. The doctor turned back the sheet and blanket, which were pulled up to his chin, and exposed his throat. On the white flesh bruises were distinctly visible.

With a movement so deft that it elicited McLane's silent commendation, Thorne drew out a small magnifying glass and studied the marks on the skin, then gently replaced the bed covers without disturbing the sleeping man.

It was not until they were in the lower hall once more that the detective spoke.

"Was he choked into insensibility?" he asked, in little more than a whisper.

"I would say so," cryptically, "but his wife claims it was another heart attack." McLane picked up his hat and overcoat and with a significant jerk of his head in the direction of the card room, led the way there instead of toward the front door.

"Mr. Winslow's statement that her husband has put the Kane case in your hands has decided me to speak of certain facts," he hesitated, then with a quick, friendly smile; "perhaps I'll regret my impulse, but—" with an appraising glance at Thorne standing gravely by him, "I feel you will respect my confidence."

"I will," and the finality of the tone pleased the physician.

"It is not my custom to discuss conditions I find in the homes of my patients," he went on "A doctor is frequently looked on as a father confessor ,and we cannot help becoming aware of information intended for publication."

"I understand," supplemented Thorne quickly. "Suppose I question you," and as McLane nodded his acquiescence; "Where did you find Mr. Winslow unconscious?"

"In bed," succinctly. "Mrs. Winslow said he fainted in her boudoir, and that with the help of Lambert she got him to his own room and on the bed when he fainted again. He regained consciousness soon after I got there and dropped off to sleep. It so happens," McLane leaned against a corner of the larger mahogany card table; "that Winslow came into my office 10 days ago, complaining of failing eyesight; so he underwent a strict physical examination at the request of his oculist; the tests gave no indication of any heart trouble."

"How about his blood pressure?"

"Just above normal; nothing to have produced this condition," with a wave of his hand toward the ceiling. "I told him to quit drinking bootleg liquor and perhaps his sight would improve."

"Is he a hard drinker?" quickly.

"Not ordinarily, no." McLane hesitated. "I imagine Mrs. Winslow did not always approve of some of the stag parties he gave," with a reminiscent chuckle, then sobering instantly: "by the way, she's the gray mare in the stable and nobody's fool."

"And yet she told you her husband was ill from a heart attack."

McLane shifted his weight to his right foot. "Perhaps she was kidding herself," he suggested; "you can never tell about a woman."

Thorne's eyes gleamed under his heavy lashes. "Is Mr. Winslow attentive to other women?" he asked, quickly.

The doctor shook his head. "Not to my knowledge," he answered. "From what I've seen it is a most harmonizing household."

"Even since the advent of Miss Chase?" and McLane caught the eager note in his voice and looked at him questioningly.

"So far as I know, yes," he replied. "Miss Chase is a remarkably pretty girl. It is a great misfortune that she is so crippled."

Thorne came closer. "Have you attended her professionally?" Then, as the physician shook his head, "were you ever asked to by Mr. Winslow?"

"Never. Why?" observing Thorne with interest. The latter did not reply immediately.

"It strikes me as strange," he said slowly, after a moment, "that Mr. Winslow should have sent for Dr. Kane to come from Boston to examine Miss Chase, when, you, their family physician, are here on the spot."

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

THURSDAY and still coolish. I told Jubilee when we woke up that I guest summer has went, but he didn't look interested. I bet when icicles are hanging on his snoot and slush is froze between his toes he will find out that I am right. But maybe he thought even if winter is coming there is not anything we can do about it. And he is right. Jubilee is a smart dog. He would ruther dig an old bone up out of the back yard than worry about something he can't help. When I had let him down by his rope and had mingled with my short britches and went down to the barn the bunch was there, and String said to let's go back to the new house and hooraw the man that got slapped in the face with the board. String is the fastest runner in the bunch. We didn't go. I told him I'm not as simple as the Lost Bag of Tripe looks and the Lost Bap of Tripe got mad and said neither was he. The poor nut.

When we got over to the vacant lot there was a man going with a pane of glass to put in Miss Parmer's attic window where Nibs kicked the football through, so we went over and asted Miss Parmer if she didn't want us to pay for the pane, and she said she didn't. She said it was worth more than a pane of glass to have a bunch of nice boys playing in her neighborhood. Banty asked her how much more, and she said a whole lot more, and he said, "Enough for all-day suckers for us all," and she laughed and gave him two-bits. I pushed his face so hard he sot down, and I took the two-bits and we all went to the store and spent it.

Whilst we were in the store it commenced to rain like a big cloud had picked out the store to empty itself on and we went and stood in the door to watch it, and the awning which was half way up was so full of water that I thought it might bust, so I loosened the ropes and let it go down with a flop. I had had my back turned to the street whilst I loosened the rope and a car had drove up and a man jumped out and ran to get in the store just in time to get slapped in the face with about three tubs of water. He staggered back against the auto and a woman that was sitting in it laughed almost the hardest I have ever heard a woman laugh, and it was such a funny laugh that we all started to laugh with her, and the man grinned at us and hollered, "I think you might throw me a life preserver!" And then he cooze is shaking like a dog. I told him was sorry, and he said he was Then we all laughed again. is the kind of a man to be sometimes. A good sport has to

Love's Reawakening

A Wife's Triumph Over Jealousy

BY ADELE GARRISON

Madge Awaits the Zero Hour.

I PUZZLED over Dicky's promise all the rest of the afternoon, when I was not too busy to think of anything save the task of decorating the dining room of the hotel for Mary's party. He had said that he knew of a way to disabuse Philip Veritzen's mind of the notion that I preferred his flowers to Dicky's, because I chose to wear them, but I could not see how he would manage it without enraging my employer.

So happy was I, however, over the outcome of my talk with Dicky, that the question of Mr. Veritzen's possible anger would not have troubled me at all, if the thought of its possible reaction against Noel and Mary had not been persisted. I had expected a most unhappy quarter of an hour with my husband, with the possibility of having to anger my employer by refusing the corsage of flowers which he was offering to me as well to all the women guests at Mary's party. Dicky had proved unusually tractable, and though I shrewdly suspected that part of his complaisance was because of Edith's outer action, yet I was so relieved at his willingness to have me wear Mr. Veritzen's flowers, that I had no desire to cavil at anything.

Surprisingly, Dicky made no comment upon the lavishness of the decoration of the improvised ballroom, and, throwing himself into the spirit of the thing as if he had planned it from the first, he took charge of the florist's man who had brought the palms and potted plants which I had ordered, while I arranged clusters of cut flowers in the different vases. I set aside my own plans, and scrupulously deferred to the frequent hints Dicky gave me as he wandered around the room, planning every detail of decoration with the zest which he brings to every task that appeals to the artistic side of his nature.

Purnell Crestfallen

At last everything was finished and Purnell had removed every bit of the debris, and was lightly brushing the floors. There was missing only the dinner decoration from the back room, where we were to have dinner served, separated from the large hotel dining room by tall screens, and we could see for ourselves just how charming that room would look. But, in spite of the many vases of flowers upon the tall brackets, it was hard to visualize the other, now filled with tables, as a ballroom. Purnell finished his sweeping and came up to us, voicing the thought present in both our minds.

"It's shoh goin' to take some tall hustlin' to git this hyah room cleared out and the floors waxed by the time yoh folks all git back from the show," with a dubious shake of the head.

"Purnell!" Mr. Seibel said softly from the doorway behind him and the darky started violently.

"If Mr. and Mrs. Graham can spare you, will you come here a minute?" I nodded acquiescence, and Purnell walked laggingly over to his employer, listened to a few soft words which we could not hear, and the tenor of which we could not glean from Mr. Seibel's poker face But it was a crestfallen Purnell who returned, and, without comment upon the magnitude of the task before us, asked what I wished him to do next.

A Quarrel Avoided

"Get your supper," I told him, promptly, "then come back here and stay, so if anyone comes here and asks for me, you can bring the message to me at the apartment."

I was conscious that Dicky had shot a keen glance at me, but I pretended not to notice. I was most anxious that he have no further cause for irritation upon Philip Veritzen's account, and it was a heedless thing for me to have given the instruction to Purnell in his hearing. Mine is unfortunately a one-track mind, however, and fresh within it was the remembrance that I had promised Mr. Veritzen to bring Mary down to see the dinner decoration which he had planned as a surprise for me I knew, however, that it was of no use for me to bring in Mary's name, if I had to explain my errand to Dicky. He already had expressed his skepticism that any part of Mr. Veritzen's lavishness was for Mary, and deep in my heart I knew that he was right.

To my great relief he made no comment upon my instructions to Purnell, and we went up amicably together to our own apartment, where Dicky looked at his watch and yawned.

"Me, I've got time for at least thirty-seven and a half winks," he said, "leaving me time to shave 'n'everything. I'd advise you to snatch some, too."

"Perhaps I will," I said, knowing that was the quickest way to forestall a discussion. But when he had gone into his own room and shut the door upon my promise to call him, I went to Mary's room, expecting to find her asleep. But, instead, I found her rushing around the room, with her evening things spread out upon her bed.

"Oh, Auntie Madge!" she said. "I'm so afraid we'll be late. Oh, I don't believe I ever was so happy in all my life."

TAXI DRIVER NAMES HUNTER AS ROBBER

B. H. Ault Identifies Man Held by Columbus Police as Holdup.

Solution of several robberies in Columbus and nearby cities was seen today by Columbus police with the arrest of Charles Hunter, 27, who Sunday night stole $10 and the taxicab of B. H. Ault of the Yellow Cab Co. here.

Ault yesterday went to Columbus to reclaim his car, a Buick sedan, and identified Hunter as the passenger whom he drove to Columbus from Marion. Hunter offered Ault $15 to make the trip, and after arriving in Columbus he stuck a gun into the Marion man's ribs, took $10 from him and speeded away in Ault's car.

The machine had been driven 700 miles since it was taken from him, Ault said today.

Columbus police have implicated Hunter in two other robberies Sunday night, one at a Columbus filling station and the other at a Columbus drug store. Hunter also is alleged to have attempted a holdup of a Columbus couple near their garage but to have been frightened away.

SCHOOL BURGLARIES ARE INVESTIGATED

Sheriff Francis Believes Waldo, Martel Buildings Entered by Same Person.

An investigation was being conducted today by Sheriff John J. Francis in the burglary early Wednesday of high school buildings at Waldo and Martel, where approximately $600 worth of equipment was stolen.

Francis believes the two burglaries to have been committed by the same thief, since both occurred the same night and since methods used were practically the same.

At Waldo, a radio and typewriter were the principal items stolen, while at Martel a large supply of manual training tools were taken. In each instance the loot totaled about $250.

Entrance at Waldo was gained through a rear door and at Martel a basement door was jimmied open.

CITY CHAMPIONSHIP WON BY ERIE

FIDO ROBBINS LEADS WAY TO 5-3 VICTORY OVER LEE STREET "9"

Failure To Hit with Men on Bases Costs Church Team Chance for Pennant; Outhit Champions 12-5, but to No Avail; Price Hits Homer.

BY BOB ELLIOTT

Floyd Robbins, Samuel Sharrock, Joseph Lang, Glen Price and five other Erie men who make up the personnel of a baseball organization representing the Erie Roundhouse are the recreation ball champions of Marion this morning. They gained this honor by defeating a scrappy Lee Street team of kids, although they were outhit and outfielded, made five errors to their opponent's three and seemed to have a somewhat flat feeling that it was not what it might have been.

This Mr. Floyd Robbins, who is more familiarly known to local baseball fans as "Fido," simply starred that ball game and city championship for the Erie himself and won't let anybody tell you different. He might as well have stayed out there in center field for all the ground he covered. He had six putouts and a couple of those were pure and plain highway robbery, nothing less. Mr. Shoemaker, who does the hurling duty for the newly crowned champions, lost that ball game so many times only to have it retrieved by Mr. Robbins that we lost track.

One Earned Run Apiece

Both teams scared across one earned run apiece but unfortunately they don't award baseball games on earned runs. Young Carl Loney who has the unusual honor of holding the Erie batsmen to 15 hits in three games and losing two of them, tossed another five-hit performance for the fans last evening. His only trouble was that he allowed four of these to be bunched in the first two innings when the winners scored all their runs.

Even then they wouldn't have meant anything had not Wade Conkle, Lee Street's great little catcher, dropped a pop fly in the first inning with two out and men on second and third. Conkle could usually have caught that ball in his hip pocket. That is, any time but yesterday. The ball, which was hit by Hosey Williams, bounced out of Conkle's glove and back to the grandstand as Joe Lang and Fido Robbins came scampering across the plate.

The two Erie runs in the second inning were the result of a terrific home run by Glen Price. Shoemaker grounded out to start this inning and then Jimmy Kerr mussed up Lusch's hard grounder Sharrock then popped to Braham for the second out but Fadley tried to outguess Price who put Lee Street out of the ball game with a drive over H. Richards head that was good for eight bases.

That was the end of Erie scoring, only two men getting on base in the closing five innings, one of these on a hit and the other on an error. Nobody saw second. That's the kind of ball Mr. Fadley was hurling.

One glance at the left on base column in the box score gives you another good reason why the Erie team won. Lee Street—12; Erie—5. If 12 men left on base in a seven-inning fray doesn't set some kind of a record I'll pick Company B to win the Commercial league next season.

They had two left in the third when Robbins made a sparkling running catch of H. Richards' drive into short left with two out. Three passed out on the sacks in the sixth when Mike Braham calmly looked at a perfect third strike with two men out. Two were on in the last of the seventh when Umpire Paul Rice called out George Primm on strikes with two away. Lee Street fans kicked quite a little on the third strike but the umpire always wins. It's like a horse race, you can't beat the umpire.

The crowd that saw the final game grossed a paid admission of $125.61. This making a total of $855 for the series of eight games. The previous best record for an entire series was $363. Last year's classic drew a gate of $277.

YOUNGSTERS BATTLE TILDEN, HUNTER FOR COURT CHAMPIONSHIP

Big Bill Strong Favorite To Cop Eighth American Tennis Title.

By The Associated Press

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 11—Those two old soldiers of the tennis court, Bill Tilden and Frank Hunter, stood today in the quarter-final round of the national tennis singles championship surrounded by half a dozen youngsters.

Big Bill was more than ever the favorite against the field in his bid for his eighth American singles crown but both he and Hunter face the stiffest kind of opposition.

Fortunes of war pitted Tilden against the same opponent he met in the quarter-final round of last year's tournament—Johnny Van Ryn.

On that occasion Big Bill turned back the former Princeton captain four sets after a hard fight.

Van Ryn displayed his usual well rounded game in downing Frederick Perry, one of the best of the younger English players, 4-6, 6-4, 6-1.

Hunter, facing big Johnny Doeg in another quarter-final in the same half of the draw, was given only an outside chance to win. Doeg needed only three sets to dispose of Harold G. N. Lee of the English contingent, 8-6, 6-1, 6-4, and Hunter repeated his victory of last season's tournament over Richard N. Williams, 7-5, 6-2, 6-4.

Favorites Have Big Day At Opening of Fair Program

Cub Fans Still Back of Team Despite Losses

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 11—The defeat by Brooklyn of the Chicago Cubs yesterday in the nerve-racking National league pennant race precipitated the Superior exchange of the Chicago telephone system into one of the worst tangles of its experience last night.

The reason was a notice appearing in the early editions of the Tribune, announcing that a telegram of encouragement was to be sent to Manager Joe McCarthy and members of the Cubs team, and inviting supporters of the club to telephone if they desired their name signed.

A few moments after the paper had reached the street, the phone calls began pouring into the Tribune office. An hour later the Superior exchange was reported 15 minutes behind on incoming calls. Later an official of the company telephoned to inquire if there had been a great catastrophe.

"Every exchange in the city is swamped," he said. 'What's the trouble?"

When it was explained to him, he said: "that's all right. Put my name down."

AVERAGE WEDNESDAY CROWD SEES LARGE FIELDS IN 4 EVENTS

Prince Mac, My Old Pal, Miss Bondeer and Harold Guy Race to Easy Wins.

It was a big day for the favorites at the opening of the Marion County Fair speed program yesterday afternoon. Four horses, all way out of their class, raced to easy straight heat triumphs in all four events on the opening day's card. Big fields faced starter Vic Peters in all races except the three-year-old pace where there were only four horses out for the money.

An average Wednesday crowd witnessed the proceedings which were enlivened by the appearance of George White, Democratic candidate for governor, and short performances by the Triple "R" Rodeo.

A Walkaway

The opening event of the day, the 2:20 trot, was simply a walkaway for My Old Pal, an added starter to the field of 11 already entered. Nettie Bingen, Lillian McKinney and General X all took their turns at trying to outrace the winner but it couldn't be done Second money was split three different ways. In the first heat of this event Hollywood Henry led all the way to the three-quarters pole and then broke, Old Pal coming through to win.

The remaining two heats were easy for the first money horse. The time was slow in this event, the best being 2:14 in the second heat.

The 2:22 pace was divided into two divisions. 11 horses going to the post in the first division for a purse of $200. Doc McMillen with his Harold Guy was easily the class of the field and had little trouble in capturing all three heats. Peters had a terrible time getting them off in the first heat of this event. William McKinney challenged the gelding on the stretch but was a little short.

The second heat was an easy affair for McMillen who led all the way. The third heat was delayed a little when Peter Russell and Venus Watts hooked wheels, smashing one of the latter's. These two horses then staged a great Traffic police are needed along the road to the National league pennant. All the efforts of the teams from Chicago, St. Louis, Brooklyn and New York to get to the championship only have resulted in one of the greatest jams that highway has ever seen.

Yesterday's contests brought the Brooklyn Robins and St. Louis Cardinals a game closer to Chicago's league leading Cubs. The New York Giants in fourth place remained only three games behind the top. With Adolfo Luque shutting out the National league champions with five hits, the Robins made it two straight over the Cubs

America Led to Polo Win Over Foes by Eric Pedley

By The Associated Press

WEST BURY, N. Y., Sept. 11—America, her supremacy in the polo world for years built around the talented aristocrats of Meadowbrook's classic school, today can bestow a large portion of the credit for her latest triumph over Great Britain to the sharpshooting son of California—Eric Pedley.

Six years ago this square-jawed, hard-riding and hard-hitting horseman galloped in from the far west to become a sensation on eastern fields but the best they conceded him that year was a substitute's role when international competition rolled around.

This summer, Pedley, now 34, came on again to thrust his way through all opposition and clinch the all-important No. 1 position on the new American "big four." Yesterday, in the second and deciding match of the international cup series, he was the outstanding star and scoring ace in the spectacular closing rally that gave America a 14 to 9 victory over Britain and clinched possession of the trophy for another period of three years.

Pedley contributed five goals in the opening match last Saturday, which America won by 10-5, and tallied eight yesterday. A record for international cup play.

Pedley had brilliant support and help from Earle A. S. Hopping, the 22-year-old No. 2 man, as well as from the great American captain, Tommy Hitchcock.

Not since 1914 has America been harder pressed by a British polo team than Captain Hitchcock's white-clad array yesterday in as thrilling and hard-fought a match as the classic series has ever witnessed. For five of the eight periods the challengers, battling desperately to win and extend the series to three games.

Singer Risks Reputation Only Against McLarnin

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 11—With nothing but his reputation at stake Al Singer, youthful king of the lightweights, takes on Jimmy McLarnin, tough two-fisted welterweight, in a ten round bout at the Yankee stadium tonight.

Despite the fact that McLarnin will outweigh Singer by six pounds, the betting marts refuse to offer better than 7 to 5 on the 23-year-old Vancouver slugger, who has knocked out such top notchers as Jackie Fields, Sammy Baker, Ruby Goldstein, Louis Kid Kaplan, and Sid Terris. Singer sought the bout and will have no alibis of laid low or outpointed by Jimmy.

CLOTHES FOR MEN

KAMBER CLOTHES

THERE'S always some favored one with a charm that's all her own. . . . And everywhere in the modern scene you'll see happy smokers breaking out fresh, fragrant packs of Camels . . . a natural choice too!

For the mildness of Camels is a charm that's all its own . . . a natural mildness that's a quality of choicest tobaccos. Don't confuse this fresh, fragrant mildness with the flatness or insipidness of "over-treated" tobacco. There's a delightful natural fragrance to Camels, too, a "bouquet" as distinctive as the fragrance of oriental flowers.

Here's to the delightful things of life! Have a Camel!

Maryland Woman Dies in Marion While Enroute from Ft. Wayne to Home.

Mrs. Edgar V. Crittenden, 60, of Takoma Park, Md., suburb of Washington, D. C., died of acute dilatation of the heart yesterday at 4:45 p. m. in her room at Hotel Marion, after a two hours illness.

Mr Crittenden, real estate dealer and bank director at Takoma Park, and Mrs. Crittenden were enroute home from a three weeks motor trip through New England and central states. The trip had taken them as far west as Ft. Wayne, Ind., where they had visited their daughter, Mrs. L. B. Schneider. Miss Marian Crittenden, another daughter, and Mr. Crittenden's sister Mrs. Nellie H. C. Taylor, also of Takoma Park, were accompanying them.

Mrs. Crittenden had been in poor health for some time, according to Mr. Crittenden, but seemed to be improved yesterday sufficiently for the party to begin the return trip from Ft. Wayne to Takoma Park. She was stricken with a heart attack east of Kenton, where they had stopped for luncheon, and was brought to Marion to the offices of Dr. L. L. Roebuck. Later she was taken to a room at the hotel.

Mr. Crittenden, his daughter and Mrs Taylor left today for Charles Town, W. Va., to complete arrangements for burial Saturday afternoon in the family burial ground there. The body wil be sent from the C. E. Curtis Co. mortuary on East Center street to Charles Town, Friday at 6:30 a. m. Funeral services will be held Saturday at 2 p. m.

THESE QUICK TABLETS REPLACE FISHY OIL

AWAY has now been found to get all the benefits of cod liver oil easily and pleasantly!

In two of McCoy's tiny tablets are all the vitamins, all the healthful benefits, of a whole greasy spoonful of cod liver oil. So now instead of making your child sick with a dose of nasty fishy-tasting oil, you simply give two tasteless tablets.

Today is the day for you to begin with McCoy's. Remember that they are a food, not in any sense a medicine, and that for best results you must give them regularly and faithfully. Get a box of McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Extract Tablets now, if you want your child to have strong, straight legs and good sound teeth. At all druggists.

STOCK TRADING IS IRREGULAR

Active Issues Move Unsteadily Through Narrow Price Range.

By International News Service

NEW YORK, Sept. 11—Back in the old rut today, active stocks on the big board swung unsteadily through a narrow range of prices, with the volume of trading falling off to the lowest of the week. Pool movements were continued in a small number of the favorites, including Radio, Vanadium and Montgomery Ward, but selling pressure in other sections of the market wiped out the gains acquired earlier in the week. Only about 80 issues changed hands up to the noon hour.

Bulls on the stock market were inclined to wait on the side lines for more tangible evidence of the return to business. The pool in Radio said to be one of the most powerful ever formed for popular speculation, pushed the stock above 43, but declined to stage very much of a "demonstration" in their favorite. Montgomery Ward and other mercantile stocks stiffened in anticipation of improving business this fall, and most of the rails finished fractionally higher in the early afternoon on the increased curtailment of crude oil production.

Trading slowed down as prices sagged off and the market duplicated the August dull period. Gillette and Vanadium were pushed along a point or two and new gains of a point or more were scored by the gas and electric light stocks, under the lead of Standard Gas & Electric.

Brisk Selling Forces Market To Take Heavy Drop Today.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 11—Brisk selling by commission houses and Chicago traders forced the March and May deliveries of wheat down almost two cents a bushel to new low levels of the season at the start of trading today. A bearish construction placed on the United States and Canadian official government crop reports issued yesterday after the close caused the decline. All deliveries were sharply lower. Corn also was decidedely lower but the government report suggested a larger crop than the trade expected.

Opening 1¼@2c lower than yesterday's finish, wheat declined still more, but the downward movement was checked and prices continued steady at the new levels. Corn started 1¼@2¼ down, sagged a little further and then rested

After the initial break of around 2 cents a bushel, wheat rallied slightly. Scattered selling and some liquidation forced prices back again, lower than before. Commission houses made moderate purchases at the bottom, but quickly unloaded all rallies. The market was nervous and broke shortly before the opening figures before buying again checked the decline. The Liverpool and Winnipeg markets were also sharply lower today, traders at both places constructing the official crop reports in the same manner as Chicago traders.

Resting orders to buy on the downturn steadied corn at the start and a moderate rally began. This brought prices up about 1 cent a bushel, but selling orders became more numerous at this stage and values slipped lower Both wheat and corn fluctuated nervously, mostly in a narrow range of around 1c a bushel in the vicinity of the opening figures Oats weakened slightly with other grains.

Provisions sagged with both grain and hogs.

Business News from Wall St.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 11—David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America, says the business outlook for the company for the last half of 1930 is considerably improved over the earlier months of the year.

D. S. Diamond, president of the Federal Screw Works of Detroit, Mich., said that "so far as we can judge from the orders and inquiries received by our company, it now appears as if business reached its extreme low during the month of July and that it is now headed upward." He said the company had a fair increase in specifications in August and a further increase so far in September.

U. S. Bonds

Fighter Knocked Out by Referee of Scrap

By The Associated Press

OKANOGAN, Wash., Sept. 11—Jimmy Downey, boxer, was having difficulty in connecting with his opponent's chin here last night so he shut his eyes and whanged away hopefully. None of the potential haymakers landed on the opponent, Cotton Fryant, but one of them caught referee Gene Fritts in the mouth.

Fritts forgot all about refereeing and sent a sizzling left to Jimmy's chin and a neat right cross to top it off. Jimmy went down for the count.

race for second place in the third trip around the oval with Mitchell edging The Watts in slightly ahead.

Prince Mac, a sorrell from the McKenzie stables, had an easy time in the first heat of the second division of the 2:22 pace but was hard-pressed to take the final two trips. In the second heat The Great Logan took an early lead and led at the half in 1:03¾. Prince Mac came in strong on the stretch to win. He then repeated the performance in the third heat after trailing Otto May.

Miss Bondeer, Christines Martinos, Lindberg Girl, and Miss Betty Logan raced all three heats of the three-year-old pace and finished in the above order each trip. Benadum couldn't get started on the Lindberg mare and never threatened.

In his short talk, candidate White said little of the political situation, saying that he would leave this for future campaign addresses.

C. E. Price of Newark and Smart, the owner and driver of Miss Bondeer, the three-year-old pace winner, were the recipients of a free dinner at the Hotel Harding last night. Today the owner and driver of the horse running the fastest heat in any pace and in any trot will receive the dinners.

Five events are scheduled for this afternoon with the 2:24 pace being separated into two divisions due to the extremely large number of entries.

Pitcher Has to Pitch Five Strikeouts to Retire Opposition.

By United Press

STEVENS POINT, Wis., Sept. 11—Five strike-outs in one inning were necessary in a baseball game between two Stevens Points teams before pitcher "Butch" Kubisiak could retire the side.

Catcher Albert dropped one third strike and overthrew first base. On another strike, the batter struck at a wild pitch, the ball hit home plate, bounced over the catcher's head and the runner was safe.

by a 6 to 0 count. St. Louis retained its one-point grip on second place as Jim Bottomley's eighth inning home run gave the Cards a 5 to 3 victory over the Giants.

THE STANDING

Chicago	80	58	.580	...
St. Louis	78	59	.569	1½
Brooklyn	79	60	.568	1½
New York	77	61	.558	3

The Giants and Cardinals started out for a second pitchers battle with Fred Fitzsimmons opposing Sylvester Johnson. The Giants forged ahead slowly, getting one run in the first, which St. Louis equalled in the third, and two more in the sixth. St. Louis overcame their labor. High's single and Adams' double accounted for one tally. Then Frisch hit, and Bottomley smacked the ball against the upper deck of the stand for a home run and the ball game.

Tom Zachary's four-hit pitching and Wally Berger's 34th home run gave the Boston Braves a 5 to 0 triumph over the Pittsburgh Pirates, while steady and timely hitting by the Phillies enabled them to defeat Cincinnati.

Washington failed to take advantage of an opportunity to tighten up the American league pennant chase. It lost to St. Louis 3 to 2 although Alvin Crowder gave his former mates only four hits. Washington remained 6½ games behind the Philadelphia Athletics, who were not successful with their four blows off Vic Sorrell. They failed to score while the Detroit Tigers bunched a good part of their five hits off Shores and Walberg for four runs in the fourth inning and won by that margin.

Danny MacFayden of Boston was not far behind in the day's hurling feats as he gave the Chicago White Sox only six hits while the Red Sox hammered out a 6 to 2 victory. Henry Johnson of New York had the honor of outpitching Wesley Ferrell, Cleveland's young ace to give the Yankees their second straight triumph over the Indians 7 to 2, and to enable them to hold their mathematical chance of capturing the flag.
